

1. Identify the problem:

Universal hub for any team sport to privately or publicly keep team statistics over seasons. A place where anyone can access any team statistics on the site for their use.

2. Set the target:

Have managers or employee that keeps track of team statistics input their team's stats for each season.

Allow general public to have access to these statistics. (view and extract)

3. Analyze the causes:

These statistics are scattered on different places.

Statistics divided by different sports adds more places people must search.

Smaller organizations might not have a place where they can store their data for easier and organized look.

4. Propose and implement countermeasures:

Web based app for teams to input their game statistics.

Teams can later view/compare these statistics in an organized layout

This data can be set to private or public by the teams.

Preferably public so that any user can access these game statistics in the future.
